

Testimonial for Ancil Taylor

I have had the privilege of working with Ancil Taylor on several matters over the years, most recently as Ballard Marine Construction's dredging expert on a complex federal contract dispute. I recommend him without reservation.

On this most recent matter, Ancil demonstrated exceptional expertise in dredging operations and best practices, particularly in the context of sediments that were challenged with contaminants requiring special consideration and responsible actions by the contractor. He is extremely knowledgeable and combines that technical command with superb communication skills. Ancil has a rare ability to analyze complex issues and break them down into clear, readily understandable explanations—an invaluable asset to our legal team and client stakeholders.

His work product was always excellently prepared, well-organized, and thoroughly supported by detailed analysis and sound reasoning. Ancil is efficient, responsive, and a true professional. I highly recommend him for any dredging-related consulting or expert work. He has been—and will remain—at the very top of my list for these matters.
